

Information for application for admission in April 2021 to the Graduate School of Social System Studies, University of Kitakyushu

The Graduate School of Social System Studies was established in April 2002 as a three-year Ph.D. program for those applicants who have already received Master's degree or have equivalent qualifications. Its principal mission is to offer opportunities for internationally competitive Ph.D. program in Kitakyushu in the wide range of interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary issues of our society which is getting increasingly globalized and localized at the same time. Since March 2005, 105 Ph.D. degrees in Social System Studies were awarded from this program.

The Graduate School of Social System Studies currently has only one department (senko), but it has three areas of specialization, namely, Urban Societies, Thought and Culture and East Asian Societies. In April 2005, a new course in International Development Policy was established in affiliation with the Asian Growth Research Institute, Kitakyushu (AGI) to provide opportunities for those who wish to specialize in the study of international development and policy formulation in East Asia. Students in this course can complete all the academic requirements in English.

The Graduate School of Social System Studies will accept applications for admission to the program in April 2021, leading to a Ph.D. in Social System Studies, as described below in this document.
